In the 90s, some people believed products made in other countries were of better quality than any “Made in Taiwan” products. Several movies made fun of Taiwan. It is clear that Taiwan didn’t project a positive image around the world. To enhance its (1)__, Taiwan can use either “hard power” or “soft power.” Obviously, the latter is a better option. “Soft power,” a term coined by Joseph Nye, refers to the ability to get what one wants through attraction rather than through coercion. Countries demonstrate soft power by actively engaging in (2)__ during natural disasters and energetically stimulating economic development. According to Nye, soft power is the ultimate way for a country to improve its image. Taiwan has (3)__ to display its soft power in recent years, and has gained a good reputation worldwide. The scene of locals eating mud cakes may shock recent visitors to Haiti. Used by Haitians to (10)__, these mud cakes are not delicious. What’s worse, the heavy metals and parasites mud cakes contain have greatly affected the health of the Haitians who eat them. This is a sad result of domestic crop shortages, (11)__, and the terrible earthquake occurred in the early 2010. According to an FAO report, more than thirty nations have long endured (12)__. To (13)__ what people eat, writer Faith D’Aluisio and photographer Peter Menzel visited and examined the diets of 30 different families in 24 countries. The Aboubakars, a family in Chad, spent about $24.40 on food a week. With (14)__, their only luxuries were salt, pepper, and a handful of ginger for flavor. Besides, they visited the Revis, a family in North Carolina, the United States. The money they spent on beverages such as juice, soda, and alcohol, is over three times the amount of the total food budget of the Aboubakars. In fact, the problem of food shortages (15)__. According to a United Nations study in 2009, over half of the world’s food was wasted. Americans threw a quarter of fruit and vegetables while one third of food in the United Kingdom was not eaten. If the world’s food supply (16)__, the amount saved will be large enough to feed every hungry person on the planet. People in Taiwan are (17)__ sooner or later if they keep wasting food. For example, they should (18)__. They should also make sure that their eyes are not bigger than their stomach. What matters is we stop wasting food.

四、閱讀測驗 (10% 每題 2 分，共五題)

Until a year ago, Karen Lozano of Tyler, Texas, had trouble feeding her children over the weekend. During the school week, Cody Lozano, now 8, and his sister Cherokee, now 9, were able to eat breakfast, lunch, and an after-school snack at school. But Lozano couldn't afford to provide those meals over the weekend.

"I had to choose whether to pay bills or buy groceries," Lozano told W/R News. "It's the same with a lot of families." An estimated 17 million children in the U.S. live in food-insecure households, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. That means these families often don't have enough grocery money after they pay bills or buy medicine.

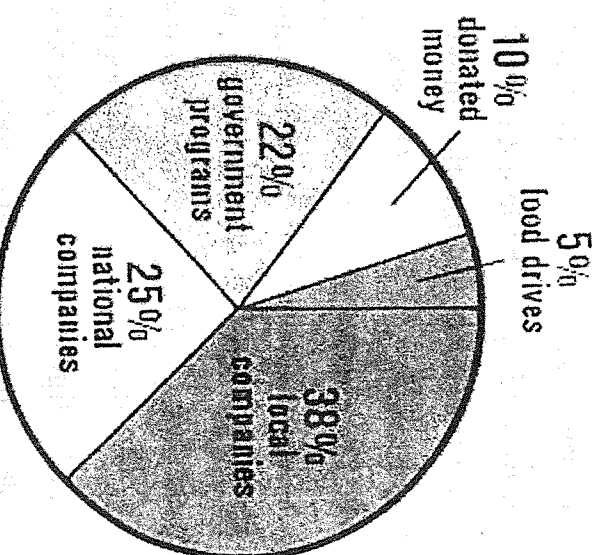

A few years ago, a Backpack club was launched at Douglas Elementary School in Tyler to help alleviate the problem. Each Friday, backpacks are filled with food that children like Cody and Cherokee take home for the weekend. "There are cans of chili, healthy snacks, Goldfish crackers, milk, cereal, juice, and cookies," says Lozano.

In 1995, the Arkansas Rice Depot, a food bank, started loading backpacks with food after a school nurse requested help. Many students at her school were complaining of stomachaches and dizziness from hunger. Today, Backpack programs are being run in 39 states to help thousands of hungry children.

"We purchase the backpacks and the food, and volunteers put the food in the backpacks and distribute them," Robert Bush, the executive director of the East Texas Food Bank, told W/R News. Bush runs the organization that started the Backpack program in Tyler.

The Backpack club also gives other students a chance to help those in need. Many of the volunteers who fill the backpacks on Fridays are looking for ways to contribute to their community. Although the program is one way to help, people are still looking for ways to reduce poverty. Nearly 38 million Americans go hungry each year, and many of those are children. With Thanksgiving around the corner, many people will be thinking about what they can do to help.

The food provided to kids in the Backpack club is donated. Each year food-rescue organizations distribute more than 2 billion pounds of food. Where does that donated food come from? Check out the pie chart.

The director, Chu-Ling Hsu, created such a picture to focus public attention __50__ environmental protection. The number of polar bears has been decreasing not only because they have been over-hunted by humans and badly affected by air and water pollution, but also because they are now being threatened by global warming. The animation sends a strong message that the polar bears are __51__ extinction. __52__ dying that they could disappear forever within decades. In fact, global warming doesn't pose a threat to polar bears alone. The severe climate change caused by global warming kills thousands of people at a time. In 2003, a heat wave hit Europe and injured more than thirty thousand people. Hurricane Katrina in 2005 __53__ tens of thousands of Americans homeless. And now more and more land that was once fertile __54__ barren, since the deserts near the equator are expanding. The animation Farewell, created by a Taiwanese student, Chu-Ling Hsu, was awarded a Special Mention at the International Festival of Animated Films AniFest in 2009. This short film 64 the very last polar bear on Earth saying farewell on a melting iceberg before it 65. Hsu indicated that global warming had become quite serious. She hoped that her film could help focus public attention on environmental protection.

Just as this animated film shows, polar bears are 66 extinction. They not only have been over-hunted and badly affected by water and air 67, but now are also being threatened by global warming. Because of global warming, a large amount of Arctic ice is melting away, and the northern seal 68 is falling. Polar bears are thus 69 decreasing in number since they have fewer places to live in and less food to eat. So fast are they dying that they could disappear forever within 70.
