Part 6: Short Passage Questions (10%)

Read the paragraph and answer the questions.

Paragraph A

Chicago is the largest city in the U.S. state of Illinois. Located on the shores of Lake Michigan, the city is known for its interesting history and tall buildings. The city was once where Native Americans originally lived. In fact, the name Chicago comes from a Native American word, referring to the wild vegetables that lined the nearby river. The history of Chicago is marked by the Great Fire of 1871. The fire burned down a third of the city. Locals quickly rebuilt homes and businesses with materials that resisted fire better. The world's first skyscraper was built in Chicago in 1885. Today, the city has the most skyscrapers in the United States. Indeed, the "Windy City" is a wonderful vacation spot. And if you're put off by Chicago's weather-related nickname, don't worry, since Chicago's average wind speed is around 10 miles per hour. That's just a little more than a gentle breeze.

- ( ) 51. What is the origin of Chicago's name?
(A) A word created in 1885.
(B) A word that means "Native American."
(C) A word in the Native American language.
(D) An old English word that means "wild vegetable."

- ( ) 52. What happened to Chicago in the Great Fire?
(A) Half of the city was burned down.
(B) Around 30 percent of the city was destroyed.
(C) The fire didn't affect the city much.
(D) Many skyscrapers were seriously damaged.

- ( ) 53. What do we know about buildings built in Chicago after 1871?
(A) They were built next to the river and other water sources.
(B) They were built with natural materials.
(C) They could not be burned down easily.
(D) They had more floors and levels.

- ( ) 54. What does Chicago have the most of, compared to other American cities?
(A) Tall buildings.

- (B) Lakes.
- (C) Hot days.
- (D) People.

- ( ) 55. Why does the writer tell readers not to worry in the last sentence?
- (A) The tall buildings in Chicago are safe.
  - (B) Chicago's climate isn't as bad as it seems.
  - (C) There aren't many fires in Chicago these days.
  - (D) People in Chicago are actually friendly and helpful.

Paragraph B

By now, it's common knowledge that climate change has presented major threats to the planet. However, there is one threat that we often ignore. Climate change is affecting crops that people rely on to survive. Wheat, corn, and rice feed billions of people. These three crops are threatened by rising temperatures and drought. Seafood is a major source of protein for the world. Sadly, warming oceans and higher levels of CO<sub>2</sub> are causing fish populations to decrease. The good news is that farmers and scientists have been working together to solve the problem. To keep these foods from disappearing completely, they breed crops that need less water and can better survive changing weather patterns. They've had a lot of success so far, but these new crops can't stop the damage that has already been done. If we don't stop climate change, we may have to find replacements for these foods in the future.

- ( ) 56. What is the threat presented by climate change that we often ignore?
- (A) It is affecting the supply of important foods.
  - (B) It is increasing the temperature of the earth.
  - (C) It is killing land animals.
  - (D) It is raising sea levels.
- ( ) 57. What can be inferred about seafood from this passage?
- (A) It contains less protein as a result of climate change.
  - (B) It should be avoided if we want to save the planet.
  - (C) It is not as important as wheat, corn, or rice.
  - (D) Some people rely on it to get the protein they need.
- ( ) 58. How are fish populations being affected by climate change?
- (A) They are increasing.
  - (B) They are experiencing no effects.
  - (C) They are getting smaller.
  - (D) They are moving to cooler parts of the ocean.
- ( ) 59. What have farmers been doing to make sure there is enough food?
- (A) They are giving crops more water.
  - (B) They are planting plants at different times of the year.
  - (C) They are growing other types of crop.
  - (D) They are trying to create plants that need less water.
- ( ) 60. What could happen if we are unable to stop climate change?
- (A) We may all die of hunger gradually.
  - (B) We will have to ask farmers to produce less.
  - (C) We will have to try and control weather patterns.
  - (D) We may have to rely on different types of food to survive.

Part 6: Short Passage Questions (10%)

Chartkov was a poor artist who wanted to be the best painter he could possibly be. All that changed, however, after he saw a portrait of an old moneylender in an art shop. Something about the subject's eyes disturbed his mind. Despite the uneasy feeling, he couldn't help but use the last of his money to purchase the picture, which he later hung on his bedroom wall. That night, Chartkov dreamed the moneylender had come alive and stepped out of the portrait's frame with a sack of coins. The next morning, Chartkov found that the portrait's frame had broken to reveal a roll of gold coins. Chartkov took the money and promised himself that he would use it to invest in his craft. Unfortunately, he didn't fulfill his commitment.

His newfound wealth changed something in him. He took out an advertisement offering his portrait-painting services for hire. Soon, he had many wealthy clients and he started to paint them in the fashion of the day. After years of financial success, Chartkov was asked to provide his opinion on another artist's painting. This artist had devoted his life to refining his work, and the piece was so perfect that it moved Chartkov to tears. Suddenly, Chartkov realized his own mistake: he had pushed aside his natural talent to make way for easy money.

- ( ) 41. What effect did the image of the moneylender first have on Chartkov?
 (A) It brought him sadness.
 (B) It showed him the real meaning of beauty.
 (C) It made him feel anxious.
 (D) It gave Chartkov confidence as an artist.
- ( ) 42. When did Chartkov find the roll of gold coins?
 (A) Before he fell asleep.
 (B) After he had the bad dream.
 (C) As he broke the painting's frame.
 (D) When he hung the painting on his wall.
- ( ) 43. How did Chartkov achieve financial success as a painter?
 (A) He put his works of art up for sale.
 (B) He made copies of the painting of the moneylender.
 (C) He painted portraits for rich people.
 (D) He used his newfound wealth to hire talented artists to work for him.
- ( ) 44. Why was Chartkov moved to tears when he saw the painting of the other artist?
 (A) The painting was awful, though the artist had worked so hard on it.
 (B) The painting of the other artist was beautiful and artistic.
 (C) He really wanted to purchase the painting but lacked the money.
 (D) He realized that the other artist tried to copy his work.
- ( ) 45. Which best describes the lesson that this story wishes to teach?
 (A) Never lend money to people you don't trust.
 (B) Stay true to one's heart and talent.
 (C) It's difficult to make money as an artist.
 (D) Don't be jealous of other people.
