As a language expert, I've always been curious about how new words have been introduced into our language. Where did words __46__ "paparazzi" and "Photoshop" come from? In fact, these words are called eponyms. Eponyms are words that started off as the name of someone or something but they had a more general meaning later. __47__, did you know "paparazzi" was actually __48__ from an Italian movie about a photographer named Paparazzo who took pictures and exposed celebrity secrets? The plural form of his name eventually came to mean "all photographers who chase celebrities around." "Photoshop" is also an example of an eponym. As a product-based eponym, its original meaning __49__ the very popular image-editing software. __50__, nowadays, it means "to edit a photo." This originally made the company very angry, but it's impossible to stop its usage now. It's so interesting to learn how language is changing every day!

Hester has a presentation on Eponyms. She makes a poster to introduce some names of persons after which a discovery is named. However, the names are mixed up. Please read her script* for the presentation and put the names in the right places.

Hester's script:

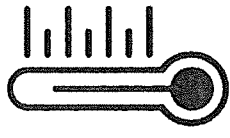

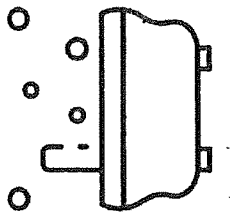

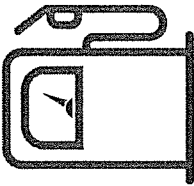

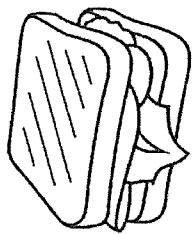

Hello fellow students, I would like to present four of the most interesting eponyms in the English language.

1. Diesel: Diesel oil is a type of fuel* for cars. It is named after the German inventor and engineer Rudolf Diesel, who in 1892 invented the diesel engine.
2. Sandwich: A sandwich is a food which consists of* vegetables, meat, or cheese between two pieces of bread. The sandwich is thought to have been made first for the Earl of Sandwich. Lord Sandwich liked to play card games and did not eat for long periods. Once he asked his servants to bring him cold meat in between two slices of bread. Thus we have this widely popular food type now.
3. Fahrenheit: Fahrenheit is a unit of measurement used to measure temperature. This temperature scale was made in 1724 by a German scientist named Daniel Gabriel Fahrenheit. He invented a thermometer* in 1714 which now bears his name.
4. Jacuzzi: Candido Jacuzzi's son suffered from a sickness which caused pains. So Jacuzzi invented a pump that he could put into a bathtub to create a whirlpool* and ease his son's pains.

Roy Jacuzzi, his nephew, began producing the pump as a commercial product in the 1960s.

For the past over two years, most countries all over the world have experienced the deadly force of the COVID-19 virus, which has claimed the lives of more than 6,300,000 people and brought public life to an end in many places worldwide. Due to the coronavirus pandemic, the countries that economically depend on tourism have also been impacted by the economic downturn. The tourism industry in many countries has brought to a halt in recent months. In addition, some countries, already economically struggling, have been burdened with ever higher levels of debt and unemployment.

As the chart below shows, the effect on tourism in the US was comparatively less at 8.6 percent of GDP. When it comes to Spain and Italy, travel and tourism made up 14.3 and 13.0 percent, respectively, of their GDPs last year, including contributions from the airline and hospitality industries as well as indirect effects from the money that tourists bring. Hence, the overall impact on these two countries has been devastating. Economists warn that few industries in the two countries—let alone tourism—will return to normal anytime soon.

66. Which word or phrase in the passage is closest in meaning to “a halt”? (A) a virus (B) an end (C) the force (D) the debt

- The following is an explanation of the data from the chart. Based on the context and the data from the chart, please answer Questions 67-70.

Mexico is the most vulnerable to COVID-19's effects on tourism, with 15.5 percent of its GDP coming from the tourism industry. In the chart, there are 68 countries in Europe whose tourism may have been seriously affected in terms of COVID-19 infections. Among these European countries, 69 have been suffering from the worst impact. 70 may be the country whose effect on tourism is the least.

67. In the first sentence, what do you think is the meaning of “vulnerable”? (A) based on good judgment rather than emotion (B) able to be easily influenced or attacked (C) not caring about the feelings of others (D) able to face risk without fear
68. (A) eight (B) seven (C) six (D) five
69. (A) Germany and France (B) Germany and Italy (C) United Kingdom and Russia (D) Spain and Italy
70. (A) South Korea (B) Russia (C) China (D) Canada
