Part 6: Short Passage Questions (10%)

Read the paragraph and answer the questions.

Paragraph A

Most pet dogs spend their days sleeping, eating, and playing. But some dogs don't have it so easy. In fact, they work for humans. Read on to learn what these furry workers do for a living.

One of their jobs is being a detection dog. These special dogs are trained to smell hard-to-find items. Commonly seen in airports, they are often used to locate illegal drugs. However, their amazing sense of smell can also detect tiny bugs, rare foods, and even cancer cells. Training takes between six to eighteen months, but the learning never stops for these pups, as they continue to practice throughout their entire careers.

Another job for dogs is being a service dog. Service dogs help people in many ways, from guiding the blind to calming people with PTSD. They can be trained to carry items, open doors, fetch medicines, and even contact emergency services. Since their tasks can be very challenging, only the smartest, calmest, and friendliest dogs are chosen for this special job. They must pass a special test before they can start working.

- () 51. What is the purpose of this passage?

(C) It needs a specific breed background, like Labradors.
(D) It must complete a two-year training program.

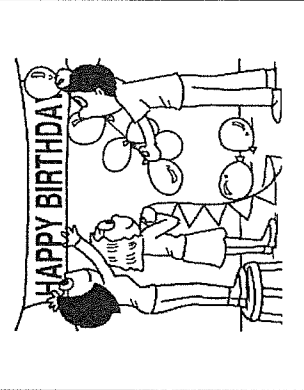

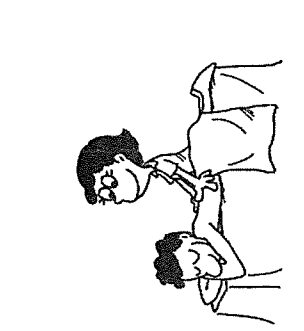

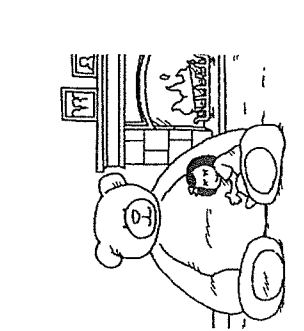

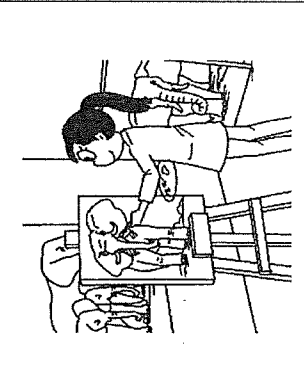

Paragraph B

One of the most famous names from ancient history is Troy. The city is where the legendary story of the Trojan War took place. The story of the Trojan War comes from ancient Greek epics like the Iliad. As the story goes, the war between the Greeks and Trojans started when Prince Paris of Troy kidnapped Helen, a beautiful Greek queen. This action angered the Greeks, who decided to go to war to bring Helen back. For a decade, the two sides fought continuously. The Greeks kept attempting to capture the city of Troy but failed because Troy's walls were extremely strong. In the end, the Greeks came up with a clever plan. They built a large wooden horse and hid soldiers inside it. Believing the horse was a gift, the Trojans brought it within their walls. At night, the hidden Greek soldiers came out of the horse and opened the gates, allowing the Greek army to enter. The Greek army then destroyed the city and won the war.

- () 56. Who or what is the Iliad?
(A) A legendary battle.
(B) A Greek city.
(C) A Greek prince.
(D) A Greek epic.

Part 7: Short Passage Questions (10%)

Read each paragraph and answer the questions.

Okinawa is widely considered Japan's tropical paradise, so it might seem strange to visit in the winter. However, if you know where to look, Okinawa is just as magical in the winter off-season as it is during the height of summer.

Okinawa is known for its spectacular stargazing opportunities. In the winter, the skies are much clearer and you can catch a glimpse of the Milky Way. For an incredible experience, join a stargazing tour offered on one of Okinawa's smaller islands, where there is less light pollution. Winter in Okinawa is usually mild, with temperatures rarely dropping below 15°C. If it gets chilly outside, you can visit Okinawa World. While the theme park's reconstruction of a traditional Okinawan village is mostly outdoors, it offers some great indoor sightseeing options as well.

Naha, the capital of Okinawa, is a wonderful place for history enthusiasts. One of the most recognizable landmarks there is Shuri Castle. Much of the structure burned down in 2019, but the reconstruction tours offered at the site make it well worth a visit. If you happen to be in Okinawa in late October, be sure to catch the Shuri Castle Festival and its celebration of Ryukyu traditions. This event is an opportunity you can't miss to experience the beauty, history, and romance of the Ryukyu Kingdom up close.

- () 41. What makes Okinawa an attractive destination in the winter?
(A) Its warm, tropical climate throughout the year.
(B) The opportunity to enjoy winter sports.
