Paragraph B

Apple pie is a symbol of America, and the reason has much to do with one man—Johnny Appleseed. Legend has it that Applesseed planted apple seeds wherever he went, and it's thanks to him that America produces so many delicious apples. Applesseed is known for his free spirit and has become a folk hero in stories about America's national origin. According to legend, Applesseed traveled barefoot, wearing nothing but a coffee sack and a cooking pot on his head. Deeply religious, Applesseed opposed violence, and is said to have refused campfires because they might burn bugs. Applesseed became further popularized when Disney produced a movie about him in 1948. In the movie, Applesseed travels across the countryside, carrying a Bible and a bag of apple seeds. Today, there are several Johnny Applesseed festivals, which are usually held around the time of the apple harvest.

() 46. What is Johnny Applesseed known for?

(A) Being a figure in the stories about America's beginnings.
(B) Being the creator of the first apple pie.
(C) His work as a writer of American history.

Part 6: Short Passage Questions (20%)

Paragraph A

Microsoft Japan tried a four-day workweek in August, 2019, and the results were eye-opening. Productivity during the month jumped 40 percent compared with the previous August, and the company also saw substantial cost savings. Those included a 23 percent decrease in electricity used and nearly 60 percent fewer pages printed. In addition, staff took 25 percent less time off. Not surprisingly, a majority of the roughly 2,300 employees involved—92 percent—liked the idea. Furthermore, the Microsoft division limited many meetings to 30 minutes, as opposed to the standard 60, and encouraged online chats instead of face-to-face talks. One of the aims was to get employees to consider how they could be more productive in less time. Companies elsewhere in the world have trialed four-day workweeks as well. It's certainly an idea that will find fans among workers all over the world.

46. What is the result of the four-day workweek introduced by Microsoft Japan?

- (A) The company's monthly profit decreased.
(B) The company ended up spending more money.
(C) The company experienced significant savings in costs.
(D) The company saw less cost savings than they had expected.

47. How did Microsoft's employees react to the four-day workweek?

- (A) Most of the employees favored it.
(B) Employees became less productive.
(C) Most employees took more time off as a result.
(D) They thought working four days a week wasn't enough.

48. Why did the Microsoft division limit meetings to 30 minutes?

- (A) Microsoft employees asked for shorter meeting times.
(B) The company wanted its employees to relax more.
(C) Microsoft wanted to fit more meetings into one day.
(D) The company wanted its employees to use time efficiently.

49. What is said about Microsoft Japan's new work schedule?

- (A) Other companies around the world have tried to adopt it.
(B) Most companies will try to avoid this schedule.
(C) The idea has proved that it only works in Japan.
(D) Microsoft's success depends on this new schedule.

Paragraph B

People from different countries and cultures view "being on time" differently. Some take showing up at the appointed hour very seriously, while others don't. In Britain, being late by even a few minutes is considered impolite. If you are delayed in Britain, it's vital to let the person you're meeting know in advance that you'll be late. Germans often arrive at least 10 minutes early to any appointment, and the same goes for the Japanese. In Japan, being anything more than a minute late is totally unacceptable. In Malaysia, however, busy traffic and unreliable public transportation means that being a little late has become normal. In Greece, it's expected that you'll be at least 30 minutes late to a social gathering. In fact, arriving sooner than that is actually considered rude. Now, the question is, which country's idea of "on time" do you subscribe to?

50. Which two types of people are talked about in this passage?

- (A) Polite and impolite people.
- (B) Serious people and funny people.
- (C) Those who make appointments and those who don't.
- (D) People who take being on time seriously and people who don't.

51. Which two countries are similar in their people's attitudes toward being on time?

- (A) German and Japan.
- (B) German and Malaysia.
- (C) Japan and Greece.
- (D) Greece and Britain.

52. Based on the passage, what is considered rude in Greece?

- (A) Arriving without a gift.
- (B) Arriving 30 minutes late.
- (C) Arriving 5 minutes early.
- (D) Arriving unexpectedly to a meeting or party.

Paragraph C

Leopard cats are the same size as domestic cats and have similar tendencies—they primarily eat mice and rats, and they prefer to avoid water. They live mainly in the low-altitude mountain regions of Miaoli, Taichung, and Nantou, and they're at the top of the food chain in these places. As one of Taiwan's few remaining larger carnivores, leopard cats are critical for keeping rat populations in check. However, farmers don't like the cats because they eat free-range chickens. To protect livestock, farmers often poison the cats. The biggest danger to leopard cats isn't hunters or farmers, though—it's cars. To address this problem, the government has put into place a roadside detection system to prevent accidents involving the cats. Tunnels have also been constructed under roads to allow animals to cross safely. So far, these efforts seem to be working.

53. What do leopard cats and domestic cats have in common?

- (A) They are both excellent swimmers.
- (B) They are the same size.
- (C) They have the same enemies.
- (D) They both make great pets.

54. Why have farmers tried to kill leopard cats?

- (A) Leopard cats have long been notorious for attacking people.
- (B) Leopard cats eat the vegetables and fruit they grow.
- (C) Farmers want to prevent leopard cats from entering their houses.
- (D) Farmers want to protect their animals from leopard cats.

55. Which of the following are NOT mentioned as a threat to leopard cats?

- (A) Cars.
- (B) Farmers.
- (C) Hunters.
- (D) Tunnels.
