Introduction:

MUN

01

MUN, known as Model United Nations, is a simulation of the UN's diplomatic work. First held at Harvard University in 1923, MUN is now a popular academic event around the world for millions of participants to have engaged themselves in.

Aiming to educate students to stand in other countries' shoes and know their cultures deeper, MUN provides a forum and opportunities for students to negotiate international issues as the delegates. By participating in MUN, one sharpens their public speaking, critical thinking, writing, and negotiating skills. Featuring delegates of the member states in the United Nations, MUN does boost the students' understanding of international relations and diplomatic challenges.

TainanMUN

Tainan Model United Nations (TainanMUN) began in 2010 with a vision to provide a forum for interaction and collaboration amongst high school students to work towards forming solutions and addressing global issues. The first TainanMUN was incredibly successful and has allowed the event to expand over the years into one of the largest MUN conferences in Southern Taiwan.

In TainanMUN, young yet mature minds learn vital skills in researching, writing, speaking, negotiating, and conflict resolution when they play the role of country delegates. The core objectives of TainanMUN are to provide students of Taiwan with a depth of knowledge on global issues and an understanding of international conflicts. TainanMUN fosters students to become young leaders and diplomats with hopes to possess the power to change the world.
